Tragedy at Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve

Woman killed by wolves in compound

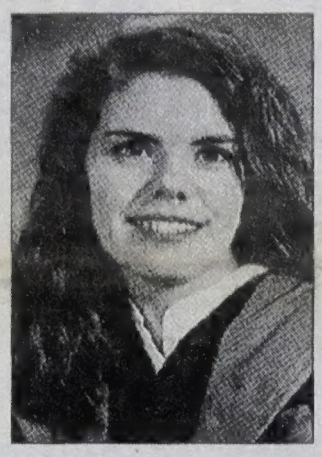
by Times staff

Authorities are still uncertain as to why timber wolves in a compound at Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve attacked and killed a 24 year old employee at the facility north of West Guilford.

Trish Wyman was completing her fourth day on the job last Thursday, April 19, when for some reason she entered the 15 acres enclosure between 4 and 6 p.m. and was attacked by the five timber wolves.

The body of the Sudbury native was discovered shortly after 6 p.m. by two employees of the reserve.

Attempts to recover the body of the victim were hampered by the aggressive attitude displayed by the wolves. When the animals were not frightened away by warning shots fired by the police, they were shot to allow the officers to carry out their investigation.



TRISH WYMAN: she helped organ-izers with this year's sled dog derby.

The body of the victim was taken to the Centre for Forensic Sciences in Toronto for a post mortem. A report on the findings is not expected until early this week

The wolves had been fed on Wednesday and would have been fed again on Friday. Police are still uncertain as to why the new employee was inside the compound Thursday afternoon.

Wyman had just begun her job at the Reserve that week. She was hired to supervise the wolf compound Her duties included feeding the animals and acting as an interpreter for visitors to the centre.

Wyman was a wildlife biologist graduate of the University of Guelph. She had also worked with wild animals at Science North in Sudbury. She had just graduated from the Sir Sandford Fleming College's Eco-Tourism course in Haliburton. Her new responsibilities at the Reserve appeared to closely match her interests. She had recently told her parents how pleased she was to have been offered the position and how excited she was about her new job.

Stephanie Pratt, a friend of Wyman's from the eco-tourism program, had just heard the news when The Times contacted her Friday morning.

"It's been a rough morning. I don't know what else to say," she commented

Pratt described Wyman as outgoing, very enthusiastic, and very dedicated to her field.

Says Pratt, "She loved the wolves. She just loved them. She was really excited about this job."

A member of the Ontario Provincial Police combs the area within the wolf compound where th body of Trish Wyman was found Thursday afternoon.

John Etches, from the Frost Centre, where Wyman worked last summer, said staff were in shock when they heard the news.

Said Etches, "She was a real spark, a real bright light, did things with enthusiasm, and was obviously going to succeed at whatever she did. She had so much potential."

Wyman, says Etches, had loved animals, and had handled them in demonstrations when she worked for Science North in Sudbury.

As part of her training in the eco-tourism course, Wyman, and two other students, assisted the organizers of this year's Minden Sled Dog Derby. Val Lougheed, spokesman for the organizing committee, said the group was shocked when they heard the news Friday. "She was such an an enthusiastic participant in this year's race," Lougheed said.

Parents get first look at school councils

by Andrew Milne

Interested community members met last week to discuss setting up a school council for Archie Stouffer Elementary School (ASES).

The move follows provincial legislation recommended by the 1995 Royal Commission on Learning, and introduced by former (NDP) education minister David Cooke. The legislation institutes such councils for publicly funded schools throughout Ontario. Current (PC) education minister John Snobelen has also spoken in favour of the move.

For many parents at the April 17 meeting, it was a first glimpse at the specifics of what responsibilities and powers such councils will have.

ASES principal Peter Forgrave, responsible for the preliminary stages of setting up the council, described the body as a way to get parents and the community more involved in the schools.

Said Forgrave, "It has been shown that where parents take a more active role in the school, students benefit... Parents are especially beneficial because they're more likely to have a better understanding of what goes on in the school."

The size of the councils will vary from school to school, depending on the student population. The ASES council will consist of 13 people — seven parents, who are elected by all the parents of the student population; two community members, who are appointed by the elected parents; the principal of the school; a teacher, elected by the teachers of the school; a non-teaching staff member, elected by his or her peers; and a student, the elected prime-minister of the school's student council.

Parents must have a child in the school at the time of the election, and a child in the school through the

Incorporation approved for health board

by Andrew Milne

The Acting Health Services Board isn't acting any more.

It's for real.

Members of the board received word that its incorporation had been approved last week.

"Even last week at the board meeting, as I was waxing eloquent about the slowness of the process, it was being delivered to the lawyer's office in Toronto," said executive director Foster Loucks.

Loucks says he is happy the board is moving forward with the incorporation, but that there is still a lot of work to be done in the coming months. The board is not yet recognized by the Ministry of Health as a transfer payment agency, and, he says, the organization is effectively a shell corporation until it actually has some assets — something that won't happen until St. Joseph's of Peterborough, the current owner of the Minden and Haliburton hospitals, signs them over.

Funding is also naturally an issue, and what the revenue picture is going to look like remains to be seen. The board approved a preliminary budget proposal for the Ministry of Health two weeks ago, but as yet hasn't heard back.

Even with all that work ahead, Loucks, he's happy.

Says Loucks, "I'm very pleased. At first it didn't sink in, and then I kind of walked around the end of my desk and thought well, we're about to simplify the equation — to the extent that it's made things somewhat more complex by having St. Joseph's part of the loop. I guess I see the advantage as being that we're a little bit more masters of our own house.

"But it doesn't mean it's going to be any easier — the decisions are going to have to be local ones now, and there's no one else to fault except ourselves."

The incorporated organization will be referred to as Haliburton Highlands Health Services.

Former medical officer dies

The former Medical Officer of Health for the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge Health Unit, Dr. Donald E Mikel, passed away April 18.

Dr. Mikel was appointed as the Medical Officer for the area in 1976, and held that office for 17 years.

Described in a Health Unit announcement as a caring humanitarian, "Dr. Mikel dedicated his entire life, both professionally and voluntarily, to health care services, greater quality of life and public health principles."

According to a Health Unit spokesman, Dr. Mikel was well respected in the Health Unit area and throughout the province. He was presented with the Distinguished Service Award in 1987 and 1989.

"He will be most remembered for his best gifts of all" a spokesman for the Health Unit said, "his gentle spirit, compassion and charismatic sense of humour."

Funeral service will be held today, April 22, at St. Peter's Church in Cobourg at 2 p.m.

Police puzzled by why victim was inside the compound and what prompted the attack gan acting aggressively when the officers entered the compound.

Staff-sergeant Andy Millar said, "They wouldn't let us do our investigation. They were coming too close — wouldn't back off... We couldn't get the body out, couldn't examine the scene, and there's all kinds of things we have to do there as far as pictures, recovering all the victims' belongings, making sure we haven't missed something, and you can't do that properly if you've got a wolf at your ear."

"It wasn't a vendetta. We shot them because we had to in order to do our investigation... They were acting in an aggressive manner."

Four of the wolves were shot and killed the night Wyman died, and the MNR arrived to remove them the next morning. The fifth was killed the next day.

Police weren't sure yet what Wyman was doing in the compound. But the investigating officer, Detective Constable Wayne Smith, says the real mystery is that the wolves attacked her at all.

Smith says the police had been helped in their investigation by Kevin Dunlop, another employee of the Reserve. Dunlop told police the wolves had never done anything like this before.

One of the members of the wolf pack at the Haliburton Forest and Wild Life Reserve. This photo was taken last year. This is the first attack of this nature documented in North America.

Says Smith, "He said these animals have never shown any aggression anywhere at any time to anybody. He's as floored as everyone else."

Adds Millar, "But we will be doing our best to establish the reason they attacked."

The dominant female of the pack was known to be pregnant and there is some speculation that may have contributed to the display of aggressive behaviour by the pack.

Imported from Michigan

The timber wolves were bred in captivity, as part of a research program in Michigan. Their wild ancestors came from Wisconsin, and were taken into captivity in 1976. Haliburton Forest and Wild Life owner Peter Schleifenbaum acquired the wolves after the program closed down in 1993.

The observation deck overlooking the wolf compound at the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve.

The five wolves were kept ina large enclosure with an observation station at one end where visitors can stand and watch the animals. A feeding station is located near the enclosed observation deck. The compound is surrounded by two eight to ten foot high chain link fences, topped with barbed wire.

According to wildlife experts, this is the first documented killing of a human by timber wolves in North America.

The bodies of the wolves were removed by Ministry of Natural Resources personnel. The carcasses will be examined to determine it there was any reason for the aggressive behaviour.

The staff at the Reserve expressed shock over the incident. Education co-ordinator J.D. Bishop said the wolves had never exhibited unusual behaviour in the past. The owner of Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve, Peter Schleifenbaum was out of the country when the attack occurred. He returned late Friday evening and could not be reached for comment.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by the Lougheed Funeral Home in Sudbury.

Breakfast with the minister

by Jerry Grozelle

Sixty people took the opportunity to meet and discuss their concerns with Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson at a breakfast meeting at the Minden Legion Saturday morning. The local MPP, who is also the Natural Resources/Northern Development and Mines Minister took notes as the group of supporters asked questions and offered suggestions.

The provincial Progressive Conservative document, The Common Sense Revolution, Hodgson explained, came from meetings like the one he was hosting.

"We're on track to doing what we said we would do," Hodgson told the crowd, which was mostly party supporters.

Hodgson said that there was a $2-billion gap between the predicted and the actual deficit. Changes had to be made to keep on track.

"Every program is being examined," Hodgson explained, adding that a "good news budget" can be expected next month.

Health care

Hodgson reiterated the fact that the health care budget envelope has been sealed at $17.4-billion. The changes, he explained, will be where and how that funding is spent. A case in point is home care, which will receive an injection of $170-million. Hodgson said that by keeping people at home, instead of in long term facilities, they are happier and it is more cost efficient. He said his government is trying to "clean up the mismanagement and waste" that was prevalent in the past.

Under the provisions of Bill 26, the Ministry of Health is setting up a committee to study the possibility of closing hospitals. Hodgson explained that 6,700 hospital beds have been eliminated over the past few years. That represents 38 hospitals. Yet there have been no hospital closures. That means administration is still in place at several locations, when consolidation of health services would result in huge savings. Those savings could then be channelled where they are most needed.

Hodgson acknowledged that rural Ontario's health care needs are different than those in the cities. Special consideration will be given to those rural needs.

Provincial deficit

Hodgson said that 25 years ago, the cost to run the provincial government was $9-billion.

"Now, the interest on the debt is $9-billion," he said. "If we tread water this year, we'd have to cut programs or raise taxes by $800-million just to stay even. Time is no longer on our side. It's time for Ontario to get its financial house in order.

"We're not going to whine about the federal government downloading," Hodgson said. He added that the world is changing and we'll all have to adapt to those changes.

Two changes the provincial government is implementing in an attempt to boost the economy are to reduce regulations, allowing businesses to dig out from under mountains of paper work, and reducing personal income taxes, stimulating consumer spending.

"Since 1990, taxes in Ontario were raised by $4-billion, but the government got less revenue," he said. "Cutting taxes will generate spending and free up the economy."

He pointed out that 90 per cent of the taxes are paid by people earning less than $68,000 per year.

Education

"There are rumours that the Harris government is going to close rural schools... and cannibalize your children," Hodgson quipped.

He said that the system will have to undergo some changes. Setting clear goals will be the challenge.

The current system of basing school board revenues (at the municipal level) on the property tax base is something the government will be looking at. Ways of ensuring a more equitable method of school board funding will be studied.

Education standards should be set and adhered to, Hodgson believes.

Budgets

Stan Baker congratulated the Harris government on its promise to run the government like a business. He asked Hodgson what would be done to ensure that the government would stay within budgets.

Accountability is the key, according to Hodgson.

"Everybody will be accountable, right down to the area managers," he said.

It is common knowledge that any budget surpluses at the end of the fiscal year are spent to ensure a comparable level of funding for the next year. That situation will change, under the Harris administration, Hodgson vowed.

He added that the government's business plan will be published with the budget.

Vandals charged

Minden and Area Police Support Association personnel apprehended three area youths who were involved in a vandalism spree in Minden Friday night or early Saturday morning. The youths were caught in the act at McMahon Feeds and Needs at about 3 a.m. Saturday, where a window was smashed. The same night, the window at the Beer Store was broken a several other incidents of vandalism were reported Constable Ken Wesley said the Police Support Association volunteers were instrumental in apprehending the individuals responsible.

"We wouldn't have caught them without their help," Wesley said.

The incidents are still under investigation.

Credit where credit is due

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson is to be thanked for his efforts to reduce the impact of the provincial transfer payments on the Haliburton County Board of Education. The community learned at a public meeting April 9 that the province would not be reducing the provincial contribution by a previously announced $1.2 million. That reduction had been reached by applying the calculations worked out according to the Ministry of Education formula. Hodgson told the meeting that because of the severity of the reduction for this and several other boards in similar situations, any loss of provincial support would be capped at 15% for this year.

It was through the efforts of our MPP that the drastic impact of the $1.2 million cut here and similar cuts in other boards was brought to the attention of the education minister. He was able to make the John Snobelen realize just how devastating the cuts would be for this area and that a second set of criteria was needed to make the reductions fair for all boards.

What is confusing for most observers is what transpired leading up to the April 9 meeting. The local board received word of the $1.2 million cut through its normal channels and, after swallowing deeply, began the process of doing what was necessary to accommodate that reduction. Somewhere between the ministry releasing the formula and April 9, the minister realized the impact of his plan and incorporated the special provisions. What further added to the confusion was what Hodgson referred to the $1.2 million reduction as a 'rumour'. He seemed to imply that either the board or the administration had somehow misled the public in raising concerns over the seriousness of the cut.

As we have learned, the $1.2 million cut was not a rumour. The board was dealing with what it believed to be the facts. It is unfortunate that the board was forced to create unnecessary concerns on the part of of the citizens of the county with predictions of the drastric nature of the cuts. It is equally unfortunate that the confusion surrounding the mixed messages coloured the welcome news and left behind feelings of confusion and distrust.

Politicians are playing 'God'

Editor:

I am writing this letter because I want to know what gives the politicians of this country the right to play "God".

I don't think there is a politician in this country who is worried about the security of his or her job, while the rest of us are worried about our jobs, or where our next meal is coming from.

Seventy percent of the people who are on welfare or Unemployment Insurance are there because of need, not want. People are giving their children up simply because after all these cuts, they can't properly provide for them any more. If things keep going the way they are, the crime rate is going to skyrocket, because people will do whatever they have to do to survive, which is a very discomforting thought.

I agree that changes need to be made, but they are being made too drastically and too quickly. Most people of this country are tax-poor and aren't going to put up with it much longer. Instead of worrying about the welfare of other countries, we should be more worried about the welfare of people in this country. The future of our children is at stake, because soon they aren't going to have any goals to strive for.

Celina Thrasher,
Minden.

Doris will be missed

Editor:

I am writing my thoughts about a good friend, Doris Robertson, who has retired from Hyland Crest in Minden.

Doris was loved by all the residents and was certainly needed there to cheer them up. The place is sure not the same without her. Her departure has saddened a lot of the residents. She was the life of the place.

You could not hitch her wrong, she could do most everything.

She could make the piano just about talk and was a lovely singer. Doris could drive the bus and took the residents on many trips. She held auction sales and was a great auctioneer, helping to raise money. She made lovely jams and pickles herself as a fund raiser. She had people selling raffle tickets two or three times a year to raise money for Hyland Crest.

I have relatives among the residents and they say they will miss Doris. She had a likeable way with everyone and you couldn't help but like her.

I know there are cutbacks all over, but I don't understand why Doris had to go. She was needed to keep the place alive. The role she filled must have been needed, or why are others taking over for her? I am not saying anything against those who got her job, for I think a lot of them too.

As the saying goes, "they never miss the water until the well runs dry".

Hyland Crest was Doris' home away from home for 23 years. She is a very kind hearted person, a real person for the job she did have.

Speaking for myself, I will sure miss her smiling face when I visit the home.

These are some thoughts from someone who thinks the world of Doris.

Velma (Chub) Stevenson,

24 hour a day emergencies

(The following is a copy of a letter sent to Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson.)

Dear Mr. Hodgson:

I am writing to you in regard to the excerpts of a letter written by Dr. David Fiddler to Mr. Foster Loucks and members of the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Board, as appearing in the April 15 edition of The Times.)

What Dr. fiddler says is true: "To believe emergencies happened 12 hours a day is terribly wrong."

They happen 24 hours a day.

That's life--My husband and I raised three children while coming up to this area since 1969. During that time we had to make emergency trips to the Minden Hospital and thank "God" it was there and open.

Now we live here and recently, I had to rush my hus-

Doctor says comments were inaccurate

(The following is an open letter to the chairman of the Haliburton Health Services Board, Paul Heffer.)

Dear Mr. Heffer:

The doctors of the Haliburton Family Medical Centre would like to comment on remarks by Doug Campbell as printed in The Times and Haliburton County Echo. Either Mr. Campbell was misquoted, or he was misinformed when he made comments to the effect that the Haliburton physicians issued an ultimatum during negotiations for an on-call stipend. Negotiations were undertaken with St. Jospeh's Hospital in good faith and in a professional manner without threats or ultimatums. After two months of negotiations, a mutually agreeable solution was made.

We feel that the comments made by Mr. Campbell appearing in both papers are inaccurate and inflammatory.

We would appreciate the inaccuracy of Mr. Campbell's comments being made known to the members of the Health Services Board.

Dr. Norman E. Bottum,
President, Medical staff,
Haliburton Hospital.

Just $10 more

Editor:

Somebody wasn't telling the truth. The bureaucrat who sent our school board the notice that we were to be cut another $1.2 million, or perhaps John Snobelen himself, should get the pink slip. Snobelen said his cuts would neither affect the classroom nor increase taxes. What a fallacy!

Now our MPP (Chris Hodgson) has ridden in like a white knight to assure us that the cuts are ONLY an additional $315,000. We should take a slight tax increase and forget about further cuts. Muskoka will pay $75 more per average tax bill. If we follow Mr. Saunders' reasoning of $35 to cover the $1.2 million, we should only need $10 or so to lower the stress level of all concerned.

I know there are two board members who would love to close our small schools and fire as many teachers as possible. Thank God they are a small minority.

Thank you for your excellent coverage of a most stressful situation. The article headlined 'Rumour or fact' was particularly potent.

Bill Valentine,
Lutterworth.

For about four episodes in a row last winter I was pretty sure that Eddie was not performing up to his feisty best. The mutt seemed listless, distracted. His usually impeccable comic timing was definitely off.

Turns out I was right. A small item in the newspaper last week revealed that the NBC vet had to perform two root canals on Eddie. Since then the pooch (whose real name by the way, is Moose) has been, according to his co-stars "a pleasure to work with."

Personally, I think Eddie (or Moose) has every reason to be cranky and out of sorts, even with a mouthful of perfect choppers. What kind of life is that--sitting around on a stuffy TV set, under hot lights waiting for his cue to hop up onto a chair, run across the dining room or bark at the cleaning woman?

Any self-respecting canine would be out on the streets, casing fire hydrants, biting postman's ankles or greeting fellow canines in that inimitable dog-to-dog, nose-to-butt greeting that should make us all think twice before allowing any mutt to lick our face.

Still, it could be worse for Eddie, I suppose. He probably eats well, has his own dressing room and generally gets treated like a star.

Humankind hasn't always been so kind to the "lesser orders".

Did you know that back in medieval times, pigs were put on trial? They were routinely charged with offences like disorderly conduct, or stepping on human toes. In some cases the offending porkers were even dressed in human clothes, tried by a judge and sentenced to a flogging.

In 1499, a brown bear was tried for terrorizing a German village. His lawyer (this guy would fit right in on the O.J. Simpson Dream Team) called for a mistrial, claiming that the bear had not been tried by a jury of his peers. No soap. The judge pronounced the poor bruin guilty and sentenced him to death.

A few years before that, a court in Basel, Switzerland put a common hen on trial after the bird had laid a strangely coloured egg. "Witchcraft!" cried the jury. The chicken was found guilty and burned at the stake.

Back in 864 A.D. a hive of bees suffered a similar grisly fate. Officials of the Holy Roman Empire ruled that the buzzy inhabitants had stung a beekeeper to death. The whole hive was sentenced to execution by suffocation.

But you don't have to go back hundreds of years to find evidence of man's inhumanity to his fellow critters. In 1972, police in Tokyo arrested a crow for swearing in public. A Tokyo cop actually read the crow its rights and let it off with a warning.

And in 1974, a dog in Libya was tried and found guilty of nipping a man in the behind. The dog was actually jailed for 30 days and put on a jailhouse diet of bread and water.

Not too many good stories in the old man versus beast file...but I do know of one.

A turkey was saved from the usual fate reserved for turkeys around Christmas time. This turkey was a grand champion, plump and healthy and ready for the roasting pan. He was also Item 39 in a charity auction held just before Christmas in London, England. Each year, the auctioneers raffle off the best turkey in all of England, to the highest bidder. Usually it's some upscale restaurant in London that buys the bird, performs the dirty deed and features the hapless fowl on its restaurant menu.

Not this year. Fate intervened in the form of Linda McCartney, vegetarian wife of Beatle Paul. She snapped the turkey up by laying down $4,600. The turkey was taken to the McCartney estate in Scotland to live out its days in peace.

Come to think of it, I know of one other inter-species encounter where man came out second best.

Last fall, a Dutch goose hunter was drawing a bead on an overhead honker, squinting carefully down the barrel when suddenly KA-BLAM! The guy was knocked sprawling with a thunderous blow to the skull.

It was a goose. A goose that had been shot by one of his hunting companions and fell out of the sky. The hunter sustained a concussion and a broken cheekbone.

The goose was dead.

But at least he didn't go meekly.

Chamber represents Highlands at two shows

Chamber News
by Connie Sims

Hello again fellow members and business associates. Since my column last month, our staff has attended and survived two more trade shows in Toronto. The Sportsman's Show, which ran for ten days, and the Cottage Life Show, a three day run. Both were very successful and well attended by the public.

Haliburton County as a destination is certainly getting a lot of exposure at these shows. According to the information cards filled out at these shows, folks like to snowmobile, ski, fish, cottage and just visit the natural beauty that our area has to offer.

Our staff brings all this information back to the Chamber office where it is put on a data base and computerised for future reference.

On the information cards there are 19 categories to check off, and by far fishing is the number one interest, especially a fishing package offering accommodation, some meals, boat and motor rental, bait and boat launching nearby. Our lodge cottage and innkeepers should take note of this.

Business to business

During MapleFest I visited a number of participating artisans studios and was very impressed with their beautiful displays.

Our next Business to Business meeting will be held at the PineStone Resort and Conference Centre on Wednesday April 24 at 6 p.m. Curry Motors and CHAY FM Radio are co-hosting this popular event. Come out and meet your fellow members, network, and compare notes past and present. Warren Riley, our membership chair and organiser of these meetings tells me there will be a sizeable number of door prizes, generously donated by local businesses. Refreshments and finger food will be served.

Nine new businesses have joined the Chamber of Commerce since January 1996, which is always encouraging to us.

The Chamber will have a booth at the Haliburton County Home Builder's Association Cottage, Home and Recreational Show at the Minden Curling Club May 4 to 6 and the Haliburton Home Show, May 31 and June 1. Our 16 foot Langford cedar strip canoe will be on display at these shows. Raffle tickets can be purchased for $2. The draw date is Labour Day. Stop by the booth and say hello. We'll also have T-shirts and sweats for sale.

Our 1996 Destination Guides have arrived at the Chamber office and are being distributed to the tourist information offices in Ontario, Michigan and New York states. Our American neighbours to the south are visiting Haliburton County in greater numbers, partly because of our marketing efforts and partly because of the favourable exchange rates. They expect to receive a fair exchange for their currency. The rate can be verified from any chartered bank or by checking the listings in the Toronto Star each day. Posting the rate of exchange near your check-out counter will be helpful and wise. In Niagara Falls, my home, the rates are displayed conveniently on the merchants' front doors and windows to entice shoppers into their establishments.

Expansion

Plans to expand our present information centre on Highway 35 are underway. This will be a 12 X 24 foot addition with a section set aside for storage. The present storage room will be refurbished as a private meeting room for clients and a rest area for weary travellers. Larry Tupling, our building chair, will be contacting members for a "barn raising". It's anticipated the new addition could be rented out to other groups as a meeting room to generate revenue for the Chamber coffers.

Our board of directors is composed of 13 elected members, all volunteers. Each member serves for a two year period. The board elects the executive. We operate on the committee system and a director serves as a chair for each of these committees. There are also subcommittees with members drawn from the membership at large. We are in the third year of our strategic plan with goals and objectives to guide us toward a successful future. The plan is evaluated annually and, where necessary, amendments and changes are made.

The following members are your Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors for 1995-96: Executive: president Connie Sims; vice president Doug Mitchell; secretary Wayne Cowling; treasurer Chad Irvine; director at large Larry Tupling.

Directors: David Bishop, Bryan Brown, Steve Crowe, Bill Dewey, Peter Grikes, John Gunning, Keith McAllister, Warren Riley, Marion Teatro and Bill Challis.

Committee Chairs: marketing Bryan Brown; finance Chad Irvine; government affairs John Gunning; membership Warren Riley; fund rasing Marion Teatro; county council Connie Sims.

We have two full-time paid staff, a general manager and an executive assistant. The majority of our operating revenue is derived from membership, a contract fee for service with county council, group insurance and marketing initiatives.

Hundreds of volunteer hours are spent by your board members at meetings and Chamber events each year. Each director owns or operates his or her own business, but still finds time to serve on the board on your behalf, representing 38% of the businesses throughout Haliburton County. A blue ribbon and kudos for each of you!

band to the Minden Hospital. It was an emergency, and I would never have made it to Haliburton, let alone Lindsay. He was stabilized at the Minden Hospital and then rushed by ambulance to Ross Memorial in Lindsay with the doctor who was on duty at the time.

What would have happened if Minden Hospital was not functioning? Think about it!

Many bad judgements have been made in the making of our town.

This is one time when there is no room for bad judgement for our town, or soon we won't have a town. People will leave. People will not come to Minden to live or visit.

D. Yule,

Minden's representation in hardball leagues reduced to two teams

by Jerry Grozelle

Minden won't be as well represented with hardball teams for the 1996 season as it has been in the past. Registration is down substantially from last year, to the point where there will be only two teams instead of five.

Ed Gibbons, one of the league organizers, said that there were kids ready to play in each division, but not enough to form teams in any but the bantam and midget divisions.

About eight players signed up for the peewee division, but that isn't enough to have a team. At least 11 or 12 players are needed to make up for those times when players are unable to make it to a game because of family holidays, illness or injuries.

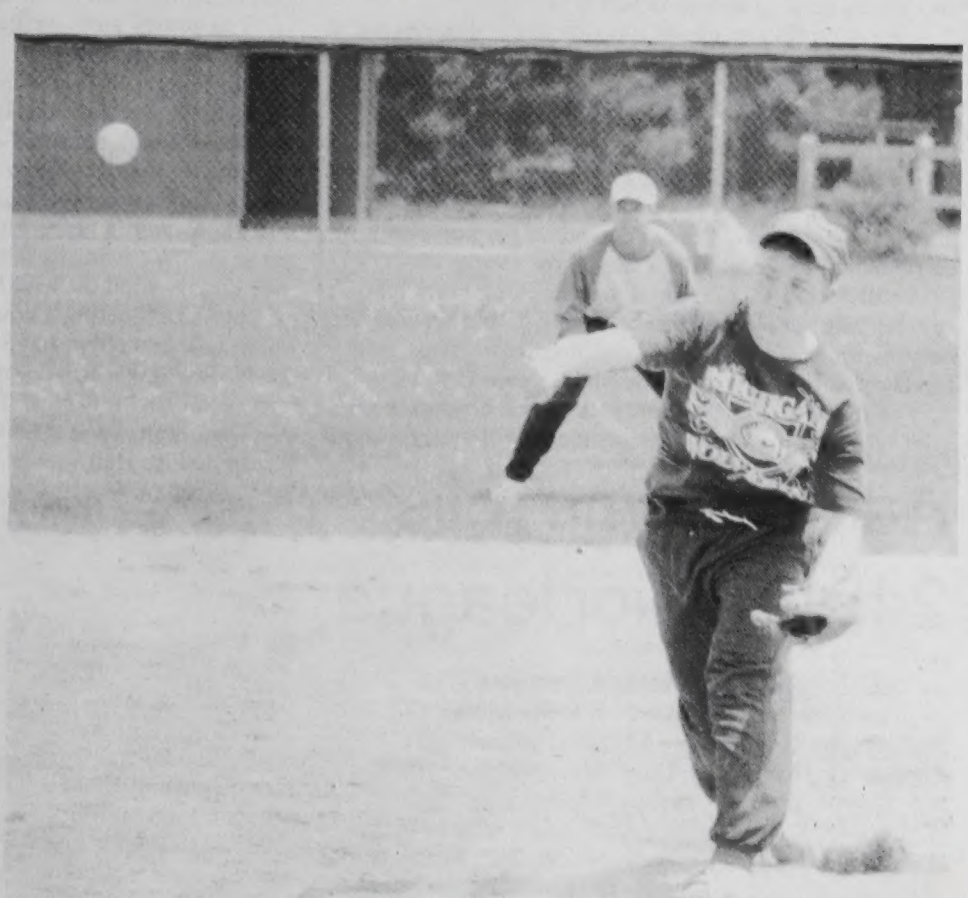
Those who are playing for the bantam and midget teams are, for the most part, boys who have been in the system for several years.

Andy Mackenzie and Ed Gibbons will share the bantam coaching, while Tom Ecclestone and Wayne Henderson will coach the midgets.

Gibbons said that Minden isn't the only community that is experiencing a drop in baseball registration. At the league meetings, other centres have voiced their concern about decreasing registration.

The season is set to get under way in mid-May. The first home games for the Minden teams will be Sunday, May 17. The bantams will play at 10:30 and the midget game will start at noon.

Gibbons said he can't explain the decrease in numbers.



SHOT FROM THE PAST: Minden midget pitcher Tom Bagshaw is seen here during a game last June. The midget and bantam teams will be the only Minden representatives in the league for the 1996 season. Registration is down in the other divisions, forcing Minden baseball officials to abandon hopes of fielding teams in the younger divisions.

$250 up for grabs in each of two classes in Lions Soap Box Derby

The Lions Soap Box Derby on July 1 will feature two classes. One is for the age range of seven to 10 years and the other is for 11 to 14 year-olds.

A total of $250 in prize money will be available for each class. The prize schedule is $100 for first place, $75 for second, $50 for third and $25 for fourth.

Deadline for completed entry forms will be June 15.

Racing on Canada Day will begin at about 9:30 a.m. The course is along Prince Street from the hill near Highway 35 toward the downtown area. Prince Street will be closed from Highway 35 to Chandos Street from 9 a.m. to the end of the racing (about noon).

Inspection of cars will take place at the municipal parking lot adjacent to the council chambers/court building.

Entry forms are available at McMahon Feeds, the Lions Medical Centre, Westside Jug City and the County Bowling Centre.

Youth soccer league formed in Stanhope Township

by Jerry Grozelle

A lack of opportunity for youngsters to play soccer in this area prompted a soccer mom to do something about it. Joan Sobil and her family moved to Haliburton County from the Oshawa area three years ago. When they moved here, she expected to be able to enrol her two young sons in soccer in this area.

"We brought the cleats with us and I thought we'd just sign up with a team here," she said.

Unfortunately for the Sobils, whom she describes as "a big soccer family", there wasn't an organized soccer league for youngsters. So, last year, with the help of neighbour Bruce Hicks and some other volunteers, she started a pick-up league for youngsters. Because of the popularity last year, Sobil decided to get her coaching certification and organize a league for 1996.

Sobil recently completed her coaching certification course. She went to Bracebridge, where she was the only woman enroled. The instructor was Mark Marshall, a former pro soccer player from Britain.

For this year, the league will be for boys and girls aged five to nine. She hopes someone will step forward and volunteer to organize a league for the older kids, if not this year, maybe in 1997.

To date, Sobil has about four people she considers "definites" to help with the coaching duties and another half dozen she thinks may be persuaded to help out. She would be happy to have more volunteers.

A maximum of eight teams with 10 to 12 players on each team are what Sobil are hoping for.

"I'm pretty sure we could make four fields at the park," she said.

Sobil stressed that this won't be run strictly by the letter of the regulations. It will be a fun league, where the players will receive half an hour of instruction to improve their skills, followed by half an hour of action to practice those newly acquired skills.

"There won't be any referees for this age group," she said. "We want to give the kids a positive experience and develop their skills."

Sobil is expecting a good turnout for the registration, which will be held at the Stanhope Firefighters' Hall on the North Shore Road tomorrow (Tuesday, April 23) from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The season will run Tuesday evenings from June 11 to July 30 at the park by the Stanhope Fire Hall.

"We have really nice facilities in Stanhope," Sobil said, adding that they should be put to good use as much as possible.

A soccer clinic for coaches and parents will be held on Tuesday, June 4. It will cover the basics of soccer coaching.

As a member of Stanhope's Recreation Committee, Sobil appealed to council, and received, a small amount of funding to get the league started.

"I'm a firm believer that this sort of thing should be self-sustainable," she said.

For this year, registration will cost $15, and the youngsters will keep their T-shirts at the end of the season. If this season proves successful and registration is good, the league may seek sponsorship for teams for the 1997 season.

Soccer doesn't require a big cash outlay for equipment and it provides great exercise for the participants, Sobil says. She has already had several calls from interested parents in Minden and a few calls from Haliburton and Eagle Lake as well.

Anyone interested in helping out with this fledgling soccer league should contact Joan Sobil at 489-3808.

The search is on

We're looking for outstanding coaches

Behind every successful athlete or team is a good coach. Successful teams or individuals usually get most of the limelight, while their coaches often receive very little attention.

The Times is proud to be a partner with the Coaching Association of Canada and 3M in the Community Coach Recognition Program. A maximum of four coaches from the Minden area will be honoured for their dedication and achievements.They will be presented with elegant gold-tone lapel pins.

A nomination form is reprinted at the right. Additional nomination forms will be available at The Times office, 134 Main Street Minden, during regular business hours (9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday to Friday).

If you know a coach who is deserving of special recognition, simply fill out a form and mail it to The Times, Box 97, Minden, Ont., K0M 2K0 or drop it off at the office.

A selection committee consisting of Bill Stackhouse, president of Minden Minor Hockey and a baseball umpire, Mel Flood, a member of the Anson, Hindon and Minden Recreation Committee, and Times sports editor Jerry Grozelle, will review the nominations and select the coaches who will receive the awards.

The primary objective of the Community Coach Recognition Program is to recognize those coaches who go beyond the call of duty and exemplify excellence and sportsmanship in their performance and coaching philosophies.

The selected coaches will be presented with their certificates and lapel pins at a special ceremony. The date and location of the presentations will be published in a future issue of The Times.

Nominees must be from the Minden area and have coached for a minimum of one year.

Don't wait and don't rely on someone else to nominate a coach you feel is worthy of this award. Fill out a nomination form and submit it soon. Profiles of the award winners will be featured in The Times.

Information help

The Haliburton County Information Centre Inc. was the recipient of a cheque for $1,000 from the Haliburton Legion Friday. In a statement released by Tiia Billings, executive director of the Information Centre, she said: "1996 is living up to its promise to be a year of change, offering new and exciting opportunities as well as significant challenges. The present economic environment is taking its toll, especially on those who can afford it the least ."

Billings added that the number of people using the services of the Information Centre has increased by 36 per cent over last year.

"This represents greater than 9,000 contacts over the year, 2,500 more than last year," she said. "This is a good indicator of the impact the economy is having on our community."

Provincial government funding for the Information Centre will cease in 1998. No definite plans for the provision of services currently provided have been put in place.

"To meet these challenges, we are actively working on alternate sources of funding and structuring to ensure our continued provision of services to an ever-increasing need within the community," Billings said. "On behalf of the Haliburton County Information Centre Inc., I would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge the generous donation made by the Haliburton Legion. Their continued support over the years not only helps operationally, but also is an indicator of the value local service organizations place on our services and provides significant moral support in our continuing efforts to provide service to the people of Haliburton County."

$1,000 DONATION: Haliburton County Information Centre Inc. executive director Tiia Billings accepts a cheque for $1,000 from Haliburton Legion manager Jim Tice, who was acting on behalf of president Dave Stirrett.

Do school councils mean the end to school boards?

following school year in order to run.

The ASES council has to be in place by June, 1996, and ready for action by the beginning of the 1996-1997 school year.

An advisory body

Forgrave describes the council as an advisory body, meant to act as a liaison between parents and the school, and between parents and the board. Among its responsibilities, the council is expected:

- to recommend priorities for curriculum and program development (as opposed to specific details of curriculum) at the school;
- to recommend criteria for the hiring of new principals;
- and to recommend budget priorities, and priorities for capital improvement projects.

Forgrave said, "A lot of us have been a little cautious about implementing school councils, and we're doing this, quite frankly, because the government told us to do it, but I do think there really is a lot of potential here, and this really could work out to be a good thing for the school."

Parents at the meeting seemed interested in the possibilities, and asked a few questions about implementation. Some seemed concerned about the requirement that council members would have to speak in public to run for the posts.

"We have some great people," said one, "who are really enthusiastic, and who are really involved, but who really aren't politicians, and really aren't up to speaking before a crowded room... Is there some other way we can do this?"

Some also worried about how well informed the voting parents could be about the candidates, in the time frame for the election.

Forgrave responded that he is open to suggestions for improving the process the school is following.

The Royal Commission on Learning describes the councils as being a liaison with the community, and says they are intended in part to take over some of the responsibility for social and community development in students, allowing teachers to concentrate more on academic issues.

Hidden agenda?

Following the meeting, board chair Wendy Ladurantaye said she had mixed feelings about the creation of the school councils. She said if the councils improve communications between the schools and the parents and community there will be a benefit. "If the councils lead to more parent involvement in the education system and a greater understanding of what we are trying to accomplish, I'm all for it" She noted that in most of the smaller communities, such Gooderham or Dorset, the parents and the community in general take a greater interest in the activities of the school. She also noted the same degree of interest at the Victoria Street School, likely because the school has a younger student population. It seems, the larger the schools, the lower the degree of parent involvement.

She suggested that school councils could be dominated by a single individual with a strong personality or a group pushing its own agenda, rather than the welfare of the entire student population.

Ladurantaye stressed that she is supportive of volunteer involvement in the school activities. But she wondered about the commitment of individuals elected to a short term position on a council, rather than the traditional three year term of trustees

She expressed some reservations over the ministry's plans for the formal introduction of the councils.

"There are those within the education system who see the councils as the first step in the elimination of school boards altogether," Ladurantaye said. "I am concerned there will be a loss of local autonomy if this is in fact the case." She said it would be harder to eliminate funding inequities, especially in rural areas, if a local board, with spending authority, was not over-seeing spending. "It is a matter of democracy," she said.

Ladurantaye said her suspicion about the purpose of school councils is further heightened by the fact that there is no connection back to the boards. She noted there is no seat on the councils for a trustee.

what we have here is the ability to communicate

Genealogists should check a variety of names

as in Kashagawigamog•Kushogawigamog•Coshogawigamog•Kashabagawigamog• Kuhog• or is it simply, Long Lake

by June Partridge

Recently I was asked by a friend to find the meaning of the name Kashagawigamog. Since I own several books on the history of Haliburton, I thought it would be an easy task.

In Fragments of a Dream, written by Leo Dobrensky, there is a chapter entitled 'On the Shores of Kushogawigamog'. She later refers to a trap line on Kushogawigamog. I was sure she had misspelled the name, but having met and talked with Mrs. Dobrensky about the recording of names and dates in area cemeteries, a project I was involved with at the time, I knew how thorough and meticulous she was as a researcher.

I followed up on the Notes she had provided at the back of her book and there she stated that Kushogawigamog or Kushog were used as alternate spellings in pioneer times. Her reference was the Peterborough Review, September 15, 1865.

I wasn't completely satisfied, so I checked in Muskoka and Haliburton 1615-1875, a book put together by the Champlain Society for the Government of Ontario. There are eight references to this lake in the book. Four times it is referred to as Kashagawigamog, once as Coshogawigamog, once as Long Lake, once as Kashabagawigamog and once as Kushog. According to this volume, the name means "Long and Narrow Lake."

The dilemma now is what to tell my friend. I finally decided to research four other books about Haliburton. Thankfully, they all referred to the lake as Kashagawigamog.

Why do you think all this would be of interest to a genealogist?

The main point is that we must never accept the spelling of a name as the only one! The family names that I am researching are Curts and Brillinger. I knew that Kurtz was changed to Curts when two brothers came from Pennsylvania, but I was really surprised when I found that one of the young men was referred to as "sometimes known as Bortz".

The same change has occurred with the name Brillinger. I have traced these ancestors to Pennsylvania, but could not find any record of anyone of that name crossing the Atlantic. My research has shown that this family was either Swiss Mennonites or of German heritage from the Palatinate.

They could still have originated in Switzerland and then moved, because of the persecution of the Mennonites. Therefore, when I toured the trail of the persecution of the Mennonites in Europe, I often looked for the name Brillinger as I knew it. In one very old Swiss town where we visited one of the original churches, I asked our guide to ask the minister (who had served the congregation for 50 years) if he had ever heard of this name. Imagine my surprise when I heard his pronunciation "Breulliger". Now I am back looking at shipping lists again and the Swiss and German records.

Of course, by this time you will know what I am about to recommend to genealogists! Check all sources of information for any spelling that may bear even the slightest resemblance to the spelling with which you are familiar. Sometimes, the scribe who is writing the information does not hear the name pronounced clearly. Other time, deciphering a written document can be difficult because the style of some letters has changed. Also remember that more than one source is needed to verify a name in your genealogy chart.

The next meeting of the Haliburton Highlands Genealogy Group is Wednesday, April 24, at the Minden library beginning at 7 p.m.

Dorset daycare could close

by Andrew Milne

Dorset residents concerned about the community's foundering daycare centre met to discuss its future earlier this month.

The daycare mangement recently issued layoff notices to its staff, due to declining revenues.

Says vice-president Scott Reid, "It has been struggling. It's probably something that's been happening to a lot of places all over. There are fewer people working, so fewer people need daycare. But we don't want to see a community lose a resource. It allows parents to work, and it's really a shame to see it go. We understand now that the school board has decided not to provide junior kindergarten next year in Dorset, so that's going to have an impact again."

Kate Reid, who was at the meeting, says the parents discussed a variety of options to keep service operating, including moving it closer to the village centre, potentially to increase enrolment, and supplying food on a cooperative basis rather than hiring a chef.

Says Scott, "One of our ideas is to move it into the community, to see if we can't make some hay while the sun's shining. During the summer there are a lot of cottagers in the area. Perhaps we can provide some new or different services for those folks. We're going to make a call to the community, see if anyone has any other ideas. "

The daycare has been losing money steadily for the past three months, due to lower enrolment levels. Board president Neil Hutchinson estimates the centre probably can't survive with less than three quarters of its 24 spaces filled. Right now, only eleven children are attending.

Apart from the generally low employment level, says Scott, the daycare has also been affected by the recent civil service strike, and will probably be further affected by impending layoffs. Normally, around half the youngsters attending the daycare are children of government workers.

Both the Reids and Hutchinson use the service and speak highly of the staff of the centre and the benefits the daycare has had for their children.

"I think what's important about the daycare is it gives the children an opportunity to socialize with other kids. They don't necessarily get that chance, especially in a rural community, where your friends are few and far between... Practically speaking there are other arrangements we can make to look after our children if we have to be creative. But that's not the point. This is a really good daycare. People who have looked into the others around, consistently comment on how good this one is. The staff are wonderful."

The centre had five full-time, and one part-time staff member. Two staff have been laid off already. The remainder would go May 10.

Income tax deadline looming

The tax season is coming to an end and the rush is on. The deadline for filing your income tax return is Tuesday, April 30. If you have taxes owing, you need to file by that date to avoid a penalty. Those with a refund coming will not be penalized for filing late.

To date the Haliburton County Information Centre Volunteer Income Tax Program has completed more than 550 returns for seniors, disabled and low income families and individuals. If you fit our criteria, we will be happy to assist. Unfortunately, as of this date we cannot guarantee we will be able to complete your return by the April 30 deadline.

For more information, contact the Haliburton County Information services at 705-457-2733 or in Minden at 705-286-4100.

SPECIALIZED EQUIPMENT: A new fetal doppler for the Minden Hospital was paid for out of money raised from the MNR Hockey Tournament in co-operation with the Coby Islanders. The presentation of a cheque for $1,000 was made Friday by Coby Islanders representatives Paul Perrault and Pat Russell. Judy Toye (holding the new piece of equipment) and Shirley Perreault accepted the cheque, on behalf of the hospital, as the Perreaults' daughter Nicole looks on.

MNR tournament aids hospital

Some of the proceeds from the Ministry of Natural Resources Hockey Tournament have purchased a fetal doppler for the Minden Hospital. The instrument is used to monitor heartbeats of unborn babies.

The fund-raiser was operated in co-operation with the Coby Islanders and representatives from that organization presented a cheque for $1,000 to hospital officials Friday. Pat Russell and Paul Perreault of the Islanders had the honour of making the presentation, while registered nurse Judy Toye and registered practical nurse Shirley Perreault (Paul's wife) accepted the cheque on behalf of the hospital.

Toye said the next item on the hospital's wish list is a haemoglobin meter, which costs about $600. The fetal doppler cost $804, so the $1,000 cheque will provide a start for that purchase.

Art enthusiasts enjoy trip to Group of Seven Show

The bus trip organized by Haliburton County's two public art galleries was both an historic event and a tremendous success.

The success was judged by the enthusiasm displayed by the 44 passengers from Haliburton, Minden, Fenlon Falls, Kinmount and other nearby communities.

It was historic because it is the first time that the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden and the Rail's End Gallery in Haliburton had ever officially worked together to organize a project.

Passengers went to the Art Gallery of Ontario in Toronto on April 11 for the biggest ever show of paintings by the Group of Seven. It was organized by the National Gallery in Ottawa and is currently touring Canada.

Several people were so enthusiastic that they hope to get back to Toronto to see them again. Entitled Art for a Nation, the show runs until May 5.

One person who plans to return is John Lennard, one of Minden's top painters and chair of the committee that operates the Jamieson. "The quality of the work was exceptional."There are so many paintings from private collections that we don't normally get a chance to see, even as reproductions," he explained. "It is an excellent show...."And it was a super trip," Lennard added. "Everything was superior; the show, the dinner at Cullen Gardens and the atmosphere on the bus trip."Mimi Carson of Lochlin described the visit as "wonderful. First, the Group of Seven paintings were marvellous....And the way everything was organized was really great."

Organizers of the trip were June Stewart, a member of the Rail's End board and Morris Duff from the Jamieson committee."Neither gallery could have done this alone," Duff said. "Every seat on the bus was sold and this could not have been accomplished if we had not teamed up."It is one more piece of evidence showing what can be done when we work together."

The trip was organized primarily as a community service, not as a fund raiser, Duff explained. "Obviously it is the kind of thing that both galleries should be doing for our communities."

Busy year for Minden Women's Institute

During the past year, we have had ten meetings; one at The Terrace, three at the Library/Cultural Centre and six at members' homes. Most meetings had speakers, convener giving papers, and at one meeting we enjoyed a visit from the Sharpless couple who have an Ostrich farm near our village. The average attendance has been 14 to 17 members.

Our card convener, Irene Moore, sent 152 cards on a variety of occasions to people who were ill, marking anniversaries, and in sympathy. This is a great project and we appreciate her efforts. This project is funded through our monthly collections, which last year amounted to $204.35.

Our volunteer hours for last year were over 200, but we may have missed some as our ladies are active in many events.

We are fortunate that the local papers will publish the reports of our meetings each month and The Times adds us to the list of coming events. Thanks to both The Times and The Echo.

We took our turn serving lunch at Hyland Crest Senior Citizens Home, with six members participating.

Our executive and conveners do an excellent job planning and carrying on with interesting programs. So many members belong to as many as 5 or 6 groups in our village and find it difficult to carry on. We all dislike paying the membership fee, but we do that anyway. We often wonder where this money is used as we seem to get little from it.

Our District Director, Mary Cox, attended all executive meetings and we sent delegates to the District Annual and Area Convention.

Younger ladies here have jobs and thus cannot get to our afternoon meetings and many of us do not like driving to meetings at night, especially when the weather is bad in the winter.

After 89 years, we are pleased to have the Victoria East District Annual here at our United Church on May 8. Our delegates have never missed these meetings in all this time.

We hope to carry on for some time yet. Next year will be our ninetieth anniversary and we look forward to that as we go on For Home and Country.

Jeanne Sears, PRO

Contributions remembered

The hard work of the late Joyce Gostock, for the Canadian Heart and Stroke Foundation, will be remembered for years to come, following a presentation last week at the local chapter's annual meeting. The Canada Volunteer Award certificate presented to Joyce last year will be hung in the Haliburton Hospital in tribute to her many contributions. Shawn Hagerman, centre, made the presentation, on behalf of the local chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation, to Hospital Administrator Foster Loucks, while Joyce's husband, Al, left, looks on.

Members' Show opens at A.J. Gallery

Merv Bunker, one of Minden's most popular craftsmen, has returned to the annual Members' Show at the Agnes Jamieson Art Gallery.

His contribution this year is a miniature of the one room school house, located about two miles from Buttermilk Falls which now is a private home.

Bunker, whose work has been voted the Peoples' Choice best of the show several times, missed last year because of a health problem.

One can look in the windows and doors of his school and see the desks, benches, blackboard and even a globe, sitting ready for the pupils.

Bunker is one of 26 artists taking part in this year's show, which opened a week ago and runs until May 18. Two other best of the show winners from the past--Doreen Berry and Derek Rolfe--also are back. Berry is noted for her stained glass while Rolfe has submitted a wooden vase and an absolutely lovely wooden fruit dish.

A Bump-up request must be received by the Minister at the address below within 30 calendar days of this Notice. A copy of the request shall be forwarded to the County Engineer. Health Corner

"Tummy Tucks Without Surgery" - cont'd:

Last week, I said "tummy crunches are to your stomach what carbohydrates are to the food pyramid". Well, you need to do lots of crunches. Do yourself lots of good. First, get into the proper position: lie down, knees bent, heels on floor. Place hands behind head, elbows out at the side, and gently lift your shoulder blades just off the floor. Hold for one count and lower. Do not allow your head to touch the floor between repetitions, no matter how tempting that may be. Remember to press your lower back into the floor and let your stomach, not your hands, do the work. If you have a bad back or want variety, crunch with your calves rested on the seat of a chair, hips directly under the knees, arms crossed across your chest. Having said all this, remember, no amount of exercise will compensate for poor eating habits. You must consume fewer calories than you burn. Carbohydrates are metabolized more easily than fats, which tend to remain just that: fat. Of course, you knew that, didn't you?

Our Red Cross Homemakers

by Florence Robinson, Minden

As through this weary world we roam,
We're lucky if we have a home.
But as the years keep passing by,
We find that we are not too spry.
Then our Red Cross Homemakers come to help us out,
And I think that is what love is all about.
They start to seem like one of us.
Of course they never make a fuss.
So thanks to those, our faithful friends.
And I pray this service never ends.
